What's this Japanese?

芋を洗うよう

(Imo wo arau yo) Lit. "Like washing potatoes" This phrase is used to refer to a really crowded place or somewhere with a lot of people. It comes from the way taro root used be tightly grouped up and washed in barrels!

"鴨シーは芋を洗うように混んでいたね"
"Seaworld was SO crowded!"

Kamogawa Food Festa 2018

October 21st, 10 AM - 3 PM

Enjoy the bountiful fall harvest from both land and sea at the "2018 Kamogawa Food Festival - the Kinme Fish and Gourmet Festival"! This event features a huge selection of local vendors and restaurateurs selling superb local fares, specialty seafoods, and Kamogawa made liquors. Visit various booths such as the "Gourmet Corner" and "Iki! Iki! Fresh Fish Corner" which will feature freshly caught fish from the surrounding Sotobo coastline. Don't miss the BBQ too! This even isn't just for food either! There will be fun events like a treasure hunt on the beach.
